

CHALLENGE

Back in 1792, one person was the judge of only six proposals to determine the image of what is arguably now the United State's most prominent house and a symbol of democracy. This competition is calling on designers to propose a new house for the President of the United States.

How would the image of this iconic piece of architecture change if it were to be redesigned now? What would a new design for the White House look like today?

INFO

Teams can have up to four members.

Participants can be from any country.

Interdisciplinary teams are allowed, although it is recommended that at least one member have an architectural background.

After registration teams will be provided with a 3D digital model of the current White House grounds and the surrounding city.

Designers can propose any size of building(s) placed anywhere within the boundary of the current White House grounds.
